

Delimitation of activities for culture's business structure and labour market statistics

The delimitation of activities is based on the recommendations from EUROSTAT and has, in cooperation with the Danish Ministry for Culture, been adapted to a Danish context. It is based on the 4-digit NACE codes, while this delimitation is based on the 6-digit Danish Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities. For some activities, it is recommended by EUROSTAT that all businesses from the activities are included, whereas in other areas it is recommended that the entire activity is mainly or partially included. Technically, this is possible by assessing all workplaces in the activities and then decide whether or not they should be included. This method gives rise to some problems in connection with establishing comparable times series, as it will always be a subjective assessment. Attempts at solving this problem have been made by delimiting culture's business structure and labour market by means of the selected activities, which are classified over the cultural subjects and sub-classified by core and supporting activity. Supporting activities are activities that are primarily considered to be activities underpinning the core activities in the cultural sector. This may concern, e.g. activities involving manufacture of or trade in products that can be used for cultural activity.
